

A Philosophy of Order

Ridgefield organizer Chris Chandler, a former client of mine, introduced me to professional organizing and inspired me to help others organize their lives and businesses. Let me share her six-point philosophy:

1. There is no right way. There is your way and what works best for you. I just create and help you explore options.
2. “Organized enough” is determined by you. You decide if, when and how it is “organized enough”.
3. The hallmark of organization: find it when you want it and control your “stuff” rather than having it controlling you.
4. Organizing is a skill. It can be learned, successfully applied, maintained and taught.
5. Organizing is an ongoing process. It is not an event.
6. Organizing is not a moral issue. You are not bad, lazy or sloppy if you are disorganized – you simply have disorganization in your life. It’s merely part of being human and trying to live the best life you can.

We always welcome your comments, questions and – most importantly -- your tips. Feel free to contact us anytime at jeff@simpleclear.biz.